

MBA International Study Trip China

Shanghai, 3rd to 8th of March 2024

According to the International Monetary Fund, China has seen rapid economic growth and overtaken some of the world's largest economies in recent years. World Bank's Gross Domestic Product (GDP) data by country put the United States at 1st place with USD 25,462,700 million and China at 2nd place with USD 17,963,170 million in 2022. To put that into perspective, Japan takes 3rd place with a GDP of USD 4,231,141 million the same year. In terms of regional GDP across key commercial centres in China, Shanghai prefecture has been and continues to be the biggest contributor, closely followed by Beijing and Shenzhen.

Shanghai is located on the country's eastern coast and the southern estuary of Yangtze River with Huangpu River flowing through it. It is the country's largest city with around 25 million inhabitants as of Population Census 2021 and is nestled in a wider urban area of close to 40 million inhabitants. The dynamic city and its surroundings are home to numerous multinational corporations and financial institutions, making it a focal point for international trade and investment. It is closely surrounded by other major commercial hubs of international importance like Suzhou and Hangzhou.

Renowned for its economic significance, modern skyline and cultural vibrancy, Shanghai is a metropolis of superlatives. According to the Globalization and World Cities Research Network, Shanghai is an "Alpha+" city alongside global metropolises such as Tokyo, Singapore, Hong Kong and Dubai, to name a few. This reflects the city's strong international connectivity in terms of "advanced producer services" such as banking / finance, accounting, advertising and law. Shanghai also occupies leading positions in various city rankings. As of 2022, the city is among the Top 10 of a study by the Globalization and World Cities Research Network and the Global Financial Centres Index.

Shanghai is not only the main financial centre in China and across Asia but also a global hub for manufacturing with strategic links spanning the world. Not surprisingly, Shanghai is a leading international transport hub with an impressive rail, air, road and sea infrastructure connecting China to the world. Port of Shanghai as well as Shanghai Pudong International Airport are one of the busiest in the world in terms of cargo load and passengers.
